The annual series of week-end retreats will open Friday evening, July 3, at 8 o'clock. This will be the first of five retreats to be held on successive week-ends.

The retreats are under the direction of the Laymen's Retreat League of St. Augustine's Seminary. The Rev. George Wilson, SVD, will be the first retreat master. ## New Bay Bridge Is Two-Mile Span

The New Bridge across the Bay of St. Louis spans shore to shore, a total length of two miles. The draw span is a modern double leaf, electrically operated span, known as a rolling lift bascule, providing a horizontal navigation clearance of 100 feet.

Protection to water traffic is provided by means of an elaborate fender system defining the channel through the draw span and a system of navigation lights and signals conforming to requirements of U. S. Coast Guard regulations. A diesel electric standby power plant is provided to insure operations of the draw span and signal lights in the event of a temporary failure of commercial power.

The concrete trestle approach spans have the same roadway width and sidewalks as provided on the draw span. The west approach consists of 137 spans, a total length of 5,617 feet, and the east approach has 104 spans for a total length of 4,264 feet. The approaches are reinforced concrete girder spans, each 41 feet long, supported on precast concrete pile bents.

Also surviving are two brothers, Albert Heitzmann of Bay St. Louis and Alvin Heitzmann of Bakersfield, Calif., and four sisters, Mrs. Edward Crawford, Bay St. Louis; Mrs. John Morris, Gulfport; Mrs. Wade Bass, Jackson; and Mrs. Ruth Hill, Eldorado, Ark.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed at this time. The paved approaches leading up to the bridge are of divided roadway construction 24 feet wide, with traffic lanes in each direction. The roadways are separated by a median strip 24 feet wide to facilitate turning movements and reduce traffic hazards to a minimum. The width of this strip is reduced to 3 feet at the bridge and there are no crossovers between the abutments.

IT TAKES LOTS OF NEW CABLE TO KEEP EXPANDING MISSISSIPPI'S TELEPHONE SERVICE

Your telephone company is moving right along with the greatest program of expansion and improvement of its long history in the State... keeping pace with Mississippi's need for more telephones.

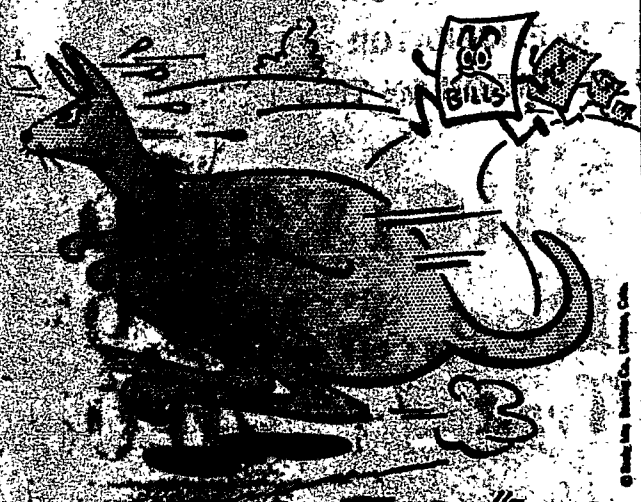

Like you, we must pay today's higher prices for everything—such as the record breaking quantities of cable, poles, and other material, called for by a program which already has more than doubled the number of Mississippi telephones since 1945.

Those additional telephones make everyone's telephone more valuable... Service is better, too. And the price you pay for it has risen far less than other things you buy... So, measure it as you will, your telephone is one of today's best values.

keep the soil in the field and stop it from flowing down our streams after every rain.

The soil which washes into the creeks and rivers is removed from the fields by the process known as erosion. The erosion occurs in two main forms but it is seldom noticed before much damage has occurred because of the loss of soil from the field. The most easily noticed is gully erosion. The gully is a ditch cut by the rain water as it flows down the hill. The other form of erosion is known as sheet erosion and is not easily noticed until a bald spot shows up in the field. This spot is usually of a different color from the rest of the field and the plants are dwarfed (midget type) and bear little or no crops.

Erosion is caused by the movement of the rain water, as it flows across the fields. If there is nothing to interfere with the flow of the water, it moves as a solid sheet of uniform depth. As it moves along it picks up some of the soil and carries it to the foot of the field or deposits it at the foot of a hill. A layer of soil is removed from the entire field each time enough rain falls to run off the field. This is a dangerous form of erosion because it is seldom noticed before so much of the soil has washed away that the crop yields are greatly reduced. Frequently crop yields grow smaller in succeeding years even though more fertilizer is applied to the field. The yield is reduced because the productivity of the soil is lowered each time the soil is washed out of the field. Many times the first indication of sheet erosion shows up as a spot which is different in color from the rest of the field. The crops grown here are small midget plants and produce little or no crops. When not controlled, this area grows larger each year and the crop production is reduced more and more.

As long as the rain water flows as a solid sheet of uniform depth across the field the soil loss is in the form of a sheet and covers the entire field. If the runoff water collects and forms a small stream as it flows down the hill the soil loss is not uniform. The soil washes faster where the water collects and flows deeper as it moves down the hill. If this uneven movement is not stopped a ditch or gully is soon formed. The gully grows deeper and eats further up the hill each time a rain falls. Thus the field grows smaller each year.

The farmers are beginning to realize that the loss of soil because of erosion can be prevented only if proper conservation measures are taken to slow up the rain water as it flows across the field. Terracing is one of the many measures used to control erosion. Mr. Aquilla McCordle of Carnes community, a cooperator of the Forrest County Soil Conservation District, recognizes the fact that terraces do control erosion. Mr. McCordle states, "I am really proud of my terraces. I had already decided if something wasn't done to stop my land from washing away, I soon wouldn't have any land that would produce me anything."

The Soil Conservation Service technicians are trained to help the farmer know how to slow up the movement of the rain water and protect the fields against erosion. These technicians make specific recommendations for each individual farm on which they work.

Telephone Project Will Area Of Tunica County Will Provide Over 100 Cost More Than $70,000

The big job now under way will require about 400 new poles, approximately 900 cross arms and over 300 miles of aerial wire and other material. In addition, telephone facilities will be placed on several hundred poles of the Con-homa Electric Power Association on a joint-use rental agreement between the two companies.

Total cost of the Tunica project will be approximately $70,000. It is one of about 100 rural tele- phone projects which Southern Bell plans to complete in Missis- sippi this year to provide rural residents of the state with an ad- ditional 5,000 telephones. Accord- ing to officials of the telephone company, additional rural tele- phone developments in Mississippi this year will cost about 2 1/2 mil- lion dollars.

Hancock County's Miss Hospitality, Mrs. Irma Joan Lee, has set about the business of getting ready for the State contest, which begins in Jackson on July 14, when the girls, about 75 in number, register in the State capitol.

Irma Joan and her Mother, Mrs. Leland Lee, are busy looking around for suitable dresses and costumes for the 4 day event which is climaxed at the Buena Vista in Biloxi, when Governor White crowns the Mississippi Miss Hospitality. Financial aid arrived Tuesday, when the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the City Council of Bay St. Louis both voted to donate $50 each to the fund to help purchase suitable clothes for the local Miss Hospitality.

Mrs. Lee, who made the beautiful evening gown that her daughter was wearing when crowned as the local winner at the Hotel Reed by Mayor Warren Carver, expects to be again chosen as chief dressmaker and costumer. A recent Gulfport contestant reports that her wardrobe contained 14 outfits, when she entrained for Jackson last year, so the Lees face a huge task in selecting the right clothes. One thing is certain, the Hancock County candi- date will be as well dressed, and right- ly so, as any girl from any other town or county in the State. The Lions Club contest committee has served notice on the State A & I Board that they will expect a winner from Hancock County.

HOME DEMONSTRATION AGENT'S NOTES

KITCHEN SAFETY

Right now, in the middle of can- ning season, is a good time to take a few minutes to remove accident haz- ards from the kitchen.

Here are some tips to make your can- ning a little safer. Use thick potholders, cotton gloves to protect your wrists as well as hands; use jar lifters. Have funnels to fill jars.

When making jelly or preserves, use a large kettle to prevent boil- overs. Heat paraffin over boiling water or over very low heat. Here is a tip: Heat the paraffin in a tin can bent to form a pouring spout, or use an old teapot.

Long-handled forks and spoons pro- mote safety as well as making the job easier.

Make sure that lids are large enough to completely cover utensils; keep handles away from edge of stove; do not have any inflammable curtains near stove. Make sure that the perco- later top is secure.

PAINT

A sensation new wall enamel that is flat, odorless, self-sealing, scrubable and just about perfect for any wall or woodwork job in the home is being presented by several paint companies.

On walls, this new enamel has a beautiful velour flat finish, yet is so washable that it can be scrubbed over and over without marring the surface.

The new paint is completely odorless. One coat does the complete job. It is easy to apply with a brush or roller and leaves no lap-marks. It is fast drying.

In addition to all this, the new paint comes in about 30 home de- corator colors.

CARE OF LAWNS

Proper mowing, watering, fertiliza- tion and weed control are essential to good lawn management.

Here are some tips. Cut grass often to allow the clippings to settle down on the lawn and return organic matter to the soil. During hot weather, the lawn should not be cut shorter than one and a fourth inches from the ground. It is best to keep the grass around two inches tall.

Water thoroughly. Light sprinklings are wasteful. They encourage shallow root development. A weekly watering that wets the soil to a depth of five or six inches will encourage deep root- ing and make the grass more drought resistant.

To help keep your lawn green and healthy, try applying two or three pounds of 16-20-0 or each 1,000 square feet of lawn. Let the grass dry, July is a good time to apply the fertilizer. Water the lawn thoroughly after fertiliz- ing to prevent burning the grass.

Keeping weeds out of lawns is es- sential. Hand weeding will be the answer in some cases. Others will want to use 2,4-D or other chemicals. Re- member, 2,4-D will kill flowers and ornamentals as well as broad-leaved weeds. Be sure to take the proper precautions when using it.
